

These Pittsburgh firms know Robert Morris University means business.

Together, they employ more than 1,800 RMU alumni in our city alone.

Now, the business education community worldwide has recognized RMU's business programs.

The Robert Morris University School of Business has just been accredited by AACSB International – The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, joining the top four percent of 15,200 business programs worldwide.

AACSB International is dedicated to the advancement of management education.
And RMU is dedicated to building our region's workforce, and ensuring that our area families have an affordable choice for a top-quality, private education, right here at home.

RMU means business. It always has.
But you already knew that.
